GOW BURNED LETTERS BEFORE HIS SUICIDE

A. B. MacKay Last Saw His Dead Friend on Morning of the Tragedy.

Jury Last Night Declared Gow Killed Himself While Despondent.

As was expected, nothing of a sensational nature developed at the Court House last night into the death of James N. Gow, who cut his throat in room 18, Terminal Hotel, on Friday afternoon. Two witnesses were examined, and naturally much interest was centered in the testimony of A. B. MacKay, the close friend of the deceased. When Mr. MacKay was called, George S. Kerr, K. C., his counsel, objected to his client being cross-examined, in view of the fact that he was out on bail on an indictable offense, and the evidence given at the inquest might possibly be used against him in his trial. Coroner Griffin, who was presiding, explained that all he wanted to question Mr. MacKay on was the actions of the deceased prior to the afternoon of the tragedy. That satisfied the lawyer, and Mr. MacKay was sworn. There had been many rumors current to the effect that Gow and his companion had been together during the afternoon, but the latter swore that the last time he saw his friend alive was at nine o'clock on Friday morning.

The evidence submitted by the other witnesses was practically the same as has been given in the report in the newspapers. No doubt rested in the minds of any of the witnesses but that Gow had taken his own life. The majority of them being satisfied that he acted despondently during the time that he stayed at the hotel. Every third a porter at the hotel, gave a piece of important evidence when he swore that he requested Gow to destroy a number of papers and letters, which the dead man had brought down. Bird took Gow to the cellar, where the papers were thrown into the furnace and burned. Bird did not know what the papers contained.

DR. CARICK CALLED.
Dr. Carick swore that he saw the body about six hours after death, finding the throat cut, the larynx cut, severed, also the external and internal jugular veins and the base of the tongue cut. No large blood vessel was cut on the left side.

"Would the injuries received cause death?"

The answer to this was given in the affirmative, as was also an answer to the question whether death was caused by this.

THOMAS MULLEN'S STORY.
Following the Coroner, Thomas Mullen, clerk at the Terminal Hotel, was next called.

"When did Mr. Gow go to your place?"

"Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock."

"He left there Thursday night?"

"Yes."

"Tell the jury what you know about his movements during the day?"

"Well, I talked to him at noon. After that I never saw him again. Later the maid told Mr. Mullen that she heard a groan in his room. Mr. Mullen went upstairs and standing on the table she looked in the room. Gow was on the bed, and Mr. Mullen thought he had fainted."

"Was the room dark?"

"Well, yes, the blind was drawn and the lights were out."

"Mrs. Mullen came down to me, and I went into the next room and sitting out the window there I climbed through the window into his room. I turned on the light and immediately I then went downstairs and called the police."

"Did Mr. Gow have anything at all?"

"He had not."

THE MAID'S VERSION.
Mrs. Mary Brockbank, who is an employee at the Terminal Hotel, swore that she saw the deceased and that she saw him on Friday morning and afternoon. In the morning she saw him walking up and down the upstairs hall, and he passed the time of day with her. At ten minutes to three he went to his room, and at ten after three she heard him groaning. After trying the door and receiving no answer, she told Mrs. Mullen.

In answer to a question as to whether or not he was depressed, she swore that he seemed so. The last words he spoke to her were to ask for Dr. Carick.

Mrs. Mullen swore that Gow had come to the hotel on Thursday and taken room 18, having had his trunk sent down on Thursday afternoon. She saw him on Thursday when he was interviewed by his lawyers. On Friday he saw him in the morning walking up and down the stairs at 2:10. He came down to dinner, seemingly despondent. He ate very little and returned to his room. The girl came down and told her about the groans, and she went up. Later Mr. Tom Mullen climbed in the window. She swore she saw two razors and one knife. One razor was in his hand. He never moved after she entered the room, and seemed to be dead. She swore he received no visitors, though there were transient guests on the same floor.

Percy Bird, 16 Province street, porter at the hotel, swore that Gow came down at 7:30 on Thursday night and asked that his trunk be taken to room 18. On Friday morning he came down to the cellar and had Bird burn up some papers and other articles in the furnace, just asking him to put them in the fire. His appearance did not strike Bird as peculiar.

Mrs. Maggie Baker was called. This witness, who is a waitress at the hotel, corroborated much of the evidence given by Mrs. Brockbank. She had no conversation with the deceased.

Mrs. Aspinwall, a visitor at the hotel, saw Mr. Gow in the lobby shortly before dinner. He appeared to be rather disheartened, she denied knowing anything further about him.

A. B. MACKAY'S EVIDENCE.
A. B. MacKay was next called, but his solicitor, George S. Kerr, pleaded that he be not put under oath, as anything he swore to could be used by the Crown in his forthcoming trial. "He has really nothing to add to the evidence already given, but if he could answer any questions of the evidence the jurors he would do so willingly."

MacKay was, however, put on the stand, as the Coroner wished to know when he had last seen Gow. He swore that the last time he saw the deceased was on Friday morning at nine o'clock, and he then seemed to be in excellent spirits.

"Did he look as though he contemplated suicide?" asked Dr. Griffin.

"No."

"Do you think that the condition he was in from worry would lead him to take the fatal step?" was the next question.

"Well, he might have become more despondent from the time I left."

Mr. H. G. Smith told three new ladies sitting next him that he was a guest at the hotel, and was not talking to the deceased.

Constable Paed, in the police station when the report reached there. He went to the hotel immediately, in company with Sergeant W. W. Constable Kay. When they arrived they went to room 18, where they found Gow. He was dead, and held a razor in his right hand. On the bed beside him was another razor. A piece broken off of one of the razors was lying on the floor. There was no evidence of any kind that would tend to make one believe that a struggle had taken place. Constable Kay corroborated the evidence of Constable Paed and produced the razor Gow held in his hand when found and also the other razor and knife. Kay added that a comforter, roughly folded, had been placed, evidently by the deceased, under his head, before he cut his throat.

This ended the evidence, and Coroner Griffin was about to address the jury when one of them asked that the lay-out of the hotel windows be explained. Mr. Thomas Mullen explained that the windows of Room 17 and 18 were close together.

In summing up the evidence the coroner said: "It seems to me, gentlemen of the jury, that the deceased, Mr. James N. Gow, was a considerable trouble. He appeared in police court on the day preceding his death, and followed that by a consultation with his lawyers. On Friday morning he had broken collected some papers which he gave to the porter to destroy. From then on he was up and down the hall, sitting upstairs until 2 o'clock, when he went downstairs for dinner. After this he apparently went upstairs, locked the door, drew down the blinds, and to all appearances committed the dreadful deed which caused his death. The housemaid heard him groaning, and notified Mrs. Mullen, who looked over the transom and saw his hand move. He was apparently dying then. Mr. Thomas Mullen then gained entrance to the room and found him dead, sending immediately for the police. The deceased was a high-spirited man, and in this manner he severed the principal organs on the right side of his neck. He was killed by loss of blood, I don't think you will have any trouble in determining a verdict to find that Jas. Gow came to his death by suicide, while in a fit of despondency, caused by many worries which he no doubt had for several days.

VERDICT OF JURY.
The jury asked for a few minutes' deliberation, and at the conclusion of that time the following verdict was returned:

"That the deceased, James N. Gow, on Friday the 20th of March, 1914, while in a state of despondency, did with certain razors and a knife so cut his throat that from the injuries he received he shortly came to his death, and that no other person is in any way to be blamed or held responsible."

SAM NOT GOING
Minister of Militia Not to Help Carson.

Ottawa, March 23.—Sir Edward Carson is to be denied the privilege of being "My man, Turpin" to Colonel the Hon. Sam Hughes in the threatened Ulster warfare, after all. Canada's military Minister, who rounded up whole regiments in South Africa, has assured Premier Borden that he isn't going to meddle in the Ulster broglio, and will leave the Carsonites to their fate.

When Parliament met this afternoon Mr. G. W. Kite once more alluded to the Windermere cablegram in the Conservative press announcing that the Ulster men had decided to fight. The Hon. Mr. Borden, Nova Scotia, Liberal, wanted to know from the Premier whether the Government had authorized any such communication from the irrepressible Colonel.

Mr. Borden seemed annoyed. "The Minister of Militia is indisposed," he commented, "but we expect him out to-morrow. He has, however, communicated to me his assurance that no communication of the kind was sent by him."

"We are getting more and more evidence that Windermere is unreliable," observed Hon. George P. Ure.

CHEERED PUGLEY
Parliament Gives Him a Rousing Reception.

Ottawa, March 23.—Parliament loves a great and good fighter. Shortly after to-night's sitting had got under way Hon. Wm. Pugsley, who led the historic struggle of Liberals against naval lease session, and who has been absent through illness until to-night, entered the Chamber and quietly, in answer to the close of the session, and re-entered at once into the arena of Parliamentary duty.

Decided without discussion, to ask permission of the Legislature to increase the salaries of the members from $200 to $250 per annum. Referred to the Board of Control for consideration of the question of amending the building by-law ordering that electric wires strung over buildings should be placed in conduits.

Granted an additional appropriation of $1,000 to the local Surrey Commission.

Granted $500 to the Salvation Army to provide a portion of the money paid for meals given to the unemployed.

Referred back the Board of Control the recommendation to ask for legislation to construct the proposed post office square on the local improvement plan.

Decided to inaugurate a donation home for transient suspects to be erected and controlled jointly by the city and the Provincial Government at the General Hospital.

Simply Miss Scottney and was quite admired in the big roles. Her recent success on her first opportunity to show her ability set the Boston musical world agog. She sings the role of Scotty's songs with as much zest, not more, than the dicta of conviction impose. When she tours Canada, Hamilton will be one of the three cities in which she will sing. She will be accompanied by Howard White, the basso of the Boston Opera company.

AT THE SAYVOR.

The big serial picture of "The Adventures of Kathlyn" was shown yesterday at the Savoy Theatre before a crowded house, matinee and evening. The first part of the picture was featured at the Merrick street house two weeks ago and caused more interest than any other film that has probably even been seen in Hamilton. The scene and part of the story more than justify what one was led to expect from the early film. Patrons who attended the last opportunity to see the third and fourth chapters of Harold M. Manufacturers whose accessories were used in a continuous performance of the recent-creating toast of the Russell-Knight engine, are vying with one another in advertising the toast, not only in Canada and the United States, but abroad, as illustrating the reliability of their particular units. VICTORIA DAY

Laurier Junction Station Changed to Monk.

OTIWA, March 13.—According to answer given by Mr. T. G. Wall (State York) by the Secretary (Centre in the Commons this afternoon Victoria Day will be celebrated on May 31. In such a case, the annual anniversary of Queen Victoria's birth comes on a Sunday, and, according to statute, the celebration of the day must be observed automatically a public holiday.

In answer to Mr. Reid, Laipin (Kamourska) the Acting Minister (Railways) Hon. Mr. Esprit, said that the name Laurier, which had been given to a junction station of the National Transcontinental Railway at Laurier Junction, was changed to Monk in June, 1912, by the Commission. The reason for the somewhat peculiar change of names was merely because there was already a station named Monk on the Canadian Intercolonial Railway. The Commission thought it advisable to change the name to avoid possible confusion.

$1,000,000 FIRE

Business Block Wiped Out in Durham, N. C.

(By Times Special Wire.)

Durham, N. C., March 24.—Property loss approximately $1,000,000, a half million dollars in value, was the result of a fire, which began here late last night and continued with unabated fury until early to-day. It was before the entire business section was threatened.

Before the flames finally had been gotten under control—practically all night in the main—large sections of the city, which included a five-story building of Brodie & L. D. L. millionaires tobacco manufacturers had been destroyed, and the fire had done considerable damage to other blocks across the street. No loss of life has been reported.

At the time the fire broke out a water main burst and for a while the firemen were helpless. This difficulty was repaired and the streams began to play on the fire, but the fire was intermittent and ineffective. In the meantime, the flames ran down the highway and in a few hours had, with the exception of three buildings, wiped out the entire block.

Fanned by a northwest wind, the fire spread rapidly and the firemen began their work of destruction in the next block. At an early hour today the fire was still burning, but was under control.

Pulse Rate in Sleep.

The extensive records obtained the course of the last few days at the Boston Normal Laboratory have made it evident that under no circumstances has the pulse rate been a sort of index of the extent of the chemical changes taking place in the muscles. The pulse rate is a measure of the intensity of the exercise performed.

No observations as to the pulse rate during sleep have been obtained. The fact that the pulse rate is a symptom which every physiologist considers a measure of the intensity of the day. There are, nevertheless, few statistics available respecting the pulse rate during sleep. The pulse rate is at a low ebull. Data on this subject have been obtained from the records of the laboratory. The average pulse rate of persons free from heart trouble is about 70 beats per minute and 74 while awake, the subject in either case being at rest in the morning.

The pulse rate is far less marked than during waking hours.

The pulse rate during sleep is in truth merely an expression of a more decided condition of the body. The pulse rate during the fact that even during waking hours figures as low as 60 beats per minute. The pulse rate, provided the degree of rest was as perfect as

MEASLES.

At times the disease is introduced into localities suffering from an epidemic of measles. Few diseases are more contagious than measles, and it is to be supposed that everyone who comes in contact with a case at least once in his life contracts the disease. It is not surprising, therefore, that in a large sick with measles, allow the members of the family to have access to the sick room, and to take the infection. The disease was introduced into this hospital by a patient, even were all precautions taken to isolate the first sufferer. This is the only case of measles in the hospital in the beginning, while the disease may appear to be suffering from a relapse. It is not always easy in these first stages of the disease to distinguish between the relapse and the disease. The best advice to be given to the patient is not sufficiently ill to be taken out of the hospital, and the physician makes its appearance on the fourth day, and usually begins on the fifth day. It is not probable that other children who have been in contact with the patient are infected, and it is only a matter of two days before they also show signs of the disease.

There is no reason, however, why there should be deliberately put into the hospital a child who is suffering from the slightest chance of escape. Young children in particular are very susceptible to the disease, and it is these after results which make the disease so dangerous to the child of childhood. Many a hundred deaths have been attributed to the disease, and the certificate bear the words, "followed by pneumonia," and it is not probable that he has hard work to persuade the parents that measles is anything but a dangerous disease.

The next best thing to saving the child from an attack is to nurse the child in such a way that the disease will not be so severe. The patient should be kept in bed, and the room should be kept cool. The diet should be of milk, milk, and the lightest of puddings, and the child should be kept cool. The child should be kept cool, and the diet should be of milk, milk, and the lightest of puddings, and the child should be kept cool. The child should be kept cool, and the diet should be of milk, milk, and the lightest of puddings, and the child should be kept cool.

HALLUX VALGUS.

As long as people persist in wearing wrongly shaped boots, so long will the disease continue to be a source of trouble to the feet which are preventible. The man or woman and in this respect the disease is the same. The disease is the same, and the man or woman and in this respect the disease is the same. The disease is the same, and the man or woman and in this respect the disease is the same.

Wanderers Lost to Quebec But Win New York Purse

Beat Quebec on Round 15 Goals to 12—O. H. A. Champs Beat Monarchs.

New York, March 24.—In the most brilliantly played game of hockey seen at the St. Nicholas skating rink in years, the Quebec six defeated the Wanderers, of Montreal, by 8 to 6. However, the Quebec aggregation did not score enough goals to win the series and the $5,000 purse offered as a prize went to the Wanderers. The total score of the two games counted on the prize. As the Wanderers defeated the Quebec six by nine goals to four on Saturday night, and the Montreal six took the series and the prize by the grand score of 18 goals to 12. Although the contest was of the whirlwind variety it was clean as a whistle until the third period. The Quebec team was the aggressor throughout and as it continued to cut the lead of the Montreal six, the latter players resorted to rough-house play to hold their lead. The climax arrived when Art Ross and Marmory went into a fight and rolled about on the ice for several minutes. They were quickly separated and both sent to the timers to cool off.

One of the largest crowds that ever passed its way into the St. Nicholas rink witnessed the game. The metropolitan followers of the sport were keen to have their favorites among the players and the good work of each team was loudly applauded. The Quebec six was the favorite, particularly because it entered the game so far behind on the score game, but because the men from the Plains of Abraham put up a wonderful up-fight.

In only the first period did the winners outplay the Quebec team. In the first session Wanderers scored two against one goal registered by Quebec. The second session was a draw, but the latter team and as they continued to roll up goals, the house was swept in as upsur. After the third session, the score stood 13 to 9 in favor of the Wanderers.

At the beginning of the third session the Quebec six continued to force the pace and had the score 18 to 13 in their favor when they blew up. Two goals in the final five minutes of play saved the Wanderers from a humiliating defeat. The Wanderers' goalkeepers: Johnson; goal, center, C. Johnson; point, Brown; cover-point, C. Johnson; right, Kennedy; left wing, Harty; right wing, O. Johnson.

Referee, O. A. Oatman; Vancouver; assistant referee, R. Nicolson; time-keeper, March 24.—In a game which was featured by speedy skating and brilliant stick-handling, T.R. and A.A. the Ontario Wanderers defeated Winnipeg Monarchs at the Arena last night by the score of 6 to 4. The winning goal was scored in the last few minutes of play. It was the first game for the Wanderers, and was played under Western rules, which do not allow skating a man on top of the Monarchs but a half-brother by the score of 3 to 2.

The first half seemed to lack enthusiasm, and the players were slow in the local, but the habit of doing this was the thing at the St. Nicholas rink, making the game really more of a war. However, in the second half the Wanderers warmed up, and the body's game, although the localists felt stronger than their rivals.

offside, though they gave a clever exhibition. T.R. and A.A. appeared with white sweaters over their uniforms, but discarded them at half-time. The locals opened the scoring by notching the first two goals, Stevenson, whose playing was sensational all night, counting the first in four minutes, when he eluded the Monarchs defense and scored. Meeting repeated in two minutes, while five minutes later they tallied the first for the visitors, he taking the puck after the first, McKing had fallen, and getting by the defense, Stevenson roared. He repeated in a minute, and the score became three while eight minutes later Dick Irvin again scored and put his team in the lead. No more scoring followed in the half. By the time the third period the players had difficulty in holding their feet, and sprays were round. The ice was very hard, but towards the finish it became sugary, thus making it hard to handle the puck.

T.R. and A.A. evened up the score after two minutes had elapsed in the second half, Harry McKing leading Dick Irvin and then passing over the puck to the latter, who scored. Three minutes later Maxwell pulled off the sensational run of the game, and from behind his own goal, carried it off the ice. The puck was then passed to Stuart with a high one into the corner of the net. Dick Irvin here drew a penalty, but came on just as Maxwell rubbed, the latter passing over the puck to Stuart, who used it when he shot one from an impossible angle, the puck glancing off Alex Irwin's skate into the net. With three minutes to play, Stevenson rubbed and went right across the net. The Wanderers goalkeepers: Johnson; goal, center, C. Johnson; point, Brown; cover-point, C. Johnson; right, Kennedy; left wing, Harty; right wing, O. Johnson.

Referee, O. A. Oatman; Vancouver; assistant referee, R. Nicolson; time-keeper, March 24.—In a game which was featured by speedy skating and brilliant stick-handling, T.R. and A.A. the Ontario Wanderers defeated Winnipeg Monarchs at the Arena last night by the score of 6 to 4. The winning goal was scored in the last few minutes of play. It was the first game for the Wanderers, and was played under Western rules, which do not allow skating a man on top of the Monarchs but a half-brother by the score of 3 to 2.

The first half seemed to lack enthusiasm, and the players were slow in the local, but the habit of doing this was the thing at the St. Nicholas rink, making the game really more of a war. However, in the second half the Wanderers warmed up, and the body's game, although the localists felt stronger than their rivals.

President Ward is Against It and Schedule Will be Arranged to Prevent Them.

Any Sunday Ball

Baltimore, Md., March 24.—When the directors of the Federal League met this morning to go over the playing dates arranged by the schedule committee, it was expected that the spirit of co-operation that prevailed at yesterday's session, would result in speedy action upon the schedule and early adjournment to-day.

President R. B. Ward, of the Brooklyn Club, came out emphatically against any Sunday baseball, and the schedule makers arranged the dates in the west accordingly.

The ball players must work the same as the bankers to maintain their standard and to improve in efficiency," said Mr. Ward. "If they fall behind, they are dropped. That's why the schedule makers will not let any one else, 'I'm not straight-laced, but I do believe in proper observance of Sunday, and because of my belief, my players will have the same relief from duty.'"

Baltimore, Md., March 24.—The playing schedule of the Federal League of baseball clubs adopted last night at a meeting here of the officials of the league. The schedule was drafted by the league's committee on the subject, and it was announced that the schedule would be made public to-day, and that the schedule probably would be made public to-day.

The most important business at the meeting was the drafting of the schedule, which was the determination to apply for an injunction to restrain the players from playing on Sunday, and the schedule probably would be made public to-day.

GOVERNMENT WELL STAY REFORM

Hanna Said That There Was No Demand for It.

ROWELL'S REPLY

Mr. Stodolme Makes Attack on Government.

Toronto, March 24.—For the third time in as many years the Whitney Government has rejected the demand for a revision of the Municipalities Act. The measure, which was introduced in the Legislature yesterday afternoon, was the subject of a long debate. The question arose on the second reading of the bill introduced by Mr. R. J. McCormick (East Lambton) to give the power to the municipalities to amend the act. The debate was not concluded before adjournment. Hon. W. J. Hanna said the bill should not pass because there was no demand for such a change in the Province, and he could not see that conditions had changed to what they were a year ago.

Mr. Rowell, in a well reasoned, logical, consistent address, presented the case for the amendment. He showed that the existing difficulties in municipalities throughout the Province demonstrated the need for local option in taxation. He supported his contention with statistics and made it clear that if the Government was not aware of the demand for reform, it was not aware of the times. Other Provinces of Canada were away ahead in the matter of amendment, while the old country was advancing by leaps and bounds.

The debate was also participated in by Lieut.-Col. T. M. Mayberry (South Oxford). He will be supported by Mr. James Marshall (Monck).

Mr. SIMPSON explained that he had introduced the bill to amend the act. He said that the present system of taxation was a failure. He said that the municipalities were not able to pay their taxes. He said that the municipalities were not able to pay their taxes. He said that the municipalities were not able to pay their taxes.

Mr. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, thought the bill was practically identical with the one that was introduced last session. He said that it had been changed in many ways. He said that it had been changed in many ways. He said that it had been changed in many ways.
